—The girls in the Philadelphia Minn made a favorite of a sparrow that was permitted to pick up their lunch crumbs. A little boy stole its nest the other day and upon drawing his hand from the box it was found full of shining particles. An examination of the box showed it to be flecked not only with gold dust, but that it was carpeted with sparkling, soft, yellow gold. The sparrow had been regularly carrying away gold dust in its feathers, which it shook —Borings which have been executed at Kolomea, in Galacia, Austria, have after several years' labor opened up a number of petroleum springs. The yield is abundant. In the Finance Minister's statistics for the current year it is reckoned that more than half the imports of petroleum during the first quarter of 1885 came from Russia. Those from America have been growing less and less, and the discoveries at

"Don't make such a discontented face. It is for you women to bring sunshine into married life," said old Peterby.

"And it is for you men to bring moonshine into it, I suppose," she replied, passing her hand scornfully over a bald place, the size of a cantaloupe on the top of his head, which bears are the flowers, crowded in the shape of a conical spike. Pineapples, in a strict botanical sense, are not fruits, but clusters of leaves which undergo wonderful changes just before ripening. The leaves greatly enlarge, enclosing the central stem, bracts, calyx, corolla and ovary, much like a common mulberry, though without seeds. Pineapples are of slow growth, but are quick to ripen. The first ever seen in England were sent as a present to Oliver Cromwell. The largest canning fac-

The Georgia Legislature has passed a bill imposing a prohibitory tax upon base-ball games.

The Ohio election comes off to-day and Democrats would do well to prepare to hear bad news.

Ex-Mayor Chas. D. Jacobs, of Louisville, has been appointed Minister to the United States of Colombia.

The northern part of Dakota is buried in snow and the southern part is being swept by prairie fires. Poor Dakota!

Belle Boyd, "the Confederate Spy," has sued the Chicago Tribune for $5,000, for stating that she attempted to jump a board bill.

The great bridge spanning the Mississippi at St. Paul has been completed. The work occupied only ten months.

Up in Dakota they had a real genuine snow-storm on Oct. 3rd. The snow fell several inches deep and the winter season has fairly set in.

Isaac Waterline is the name of a Topeka (Kas.) milkman. "I. Waterline" would be rather a suggestive sign to have painted on his wagon - Interior Journal.

Rev. J. L. M. Curry, a well-known Baptist preacher of Virginia, has been appointed Minister to Spain. He was in Congress before the war and was a member of the Confederate Congress.

Col. Wallace Gruelle has resigned the position of chief deputy in U. S. Marshal Gross' office, to accept the position on the Louisville Times vacated by Col. E. Polk Johnson.

Jas. E. Hayden, Assistant District Attorney at a salary of $1,400, has been dismissed from office, although a Democrat, for speaking disrespectfully of the President in a street-car.

The Ohio election will come off to-day. Both sides are claiming the victory, but the chances are that Foraker will be elected, as Ohio is a Republican state whenever a race is made on strict party issues.

Among the appointments Friday were Chas. Foster, Indiana, consul at Calcutta and Wm. F. Henderson, Arkansas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico, vice W. B. Fleming resigned.

Cardinal John McCloskey, the venerable prelate of the Roman Catholic church in this country and the only American ever made a "Prince of the Church," died at his home in New York Friday, in the 70th year of his age.

Col. Thos. L. Jones has again been knocked out of the ring, this time by a Baptist preacher. He came within one vote of getting the Spanish Mission - almost as close as the last gubernatorial Convention. That one vote, however, was a very important one. It was the President's.

The London Leader is less than a month old, but it is already one of the best papers in the mountain section. It is edited by Mr. M. T. Craft, but, judging from the paper he gets up, the editor's initials do not indicate the condition of his head, and we sincerely trust that they may not represent the state of his exchequer.

The Louisville Commercial says Col. Will S. Hays, the well-known song-writer, poet and river editor, has signed a contract to go on the minstrel stage with Haverly's troupe on Jan. 1st, 1886, to remain three years. He will act as end man and play the old man characters.

Hon. O. P. Hogan, of Grant county, Representative-elect, died a few days ago. It is a singular coincidence that in 1883 his eldest son, Hon. W. N. Hogan, was elected to represent the same county and died before taking his seat. The Governor will order a special election to fill the vacancy.

The Danish Arctic expedition has returned to Copenhagen after an absence of twenty-nine months, the most of which time was spent in exploring the eastern coast of Greenland. The commander of the expedition has prepared a special chart showing the surveys of a coast hitherto unknown, which was taken possession of in the name of Denmark and christened "Christian Island." The explorers reached latitude 66° 08' north.

At 11 o'clock Saturday morning the flood rock in the Harbor, between New York and Brooklyn, known as "Hell Gate" was blasted by dynamite. It was stored in 13,000 tackerrock cartridges each over two feet long, there being 280,000 pounds of the dynamite. It was lighted by electricity over a net work of 14 miles of wires and the explosion was the most powerful in the history of engineering. Manhattan island was shaken as if by an earthquake. The waters were thrown upward in a solid sheet 200 feet high. The magnificent spectacle was witnessed by thousands of people at a safe distance away.

"Unless Louisville is a hog she will cry, 'Hold! Enough!' Minister to Colombia! Minister to Peru! Minister to Switzerland! Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico! Consul to Nagasaki! Surveyor of the Port! Steamboat Inspector! Gaugers and Storekeepers Galore!"

Precious few crumbs from the official table have fallen to this end of the State. But, 'Twas ever thus.

FRUIT HILL.

Oct. 10th, 1885.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

We had a frost Tuesday night, though it did but little damage to tobacco. The farmers have been very busy this week housing their tobacco and most of them are done.

Protracted meetings seem to be the order of the day. There is one going on at Bald Knob school house, another at Hickory Withe church, both Baptists; another at Pond River Christian church; another to commence at White Plains school house the 26th inst., to be conducted by Rev. M. L. Pope, Universalist; another to commence at Pleasant Hill church the 25th inst. If we Pond-riverians are not saved, it will not be from want of preaching.

Messrs. Hart Wiks, John W. Henderson, Judge West and others killed a very fine deer last week. They wounded it in the evening, and followed it until eleven o'clock that night, before they killed it. They have been hunting ever since, but without success.

Edgar Robinson is still cutting hoop-poles for the Hopkinsville market.

Mr. J. H. Ebling is very ill with pneumonia.

Miss Annie Brown, of Crofton, commenced a school last Monday at Davis's school house. Success to you Miss Annie.

Prof. E. D. Coburn is teaching a graded school at Pleasant Hill church.

The singing at White Plains is booming. There are several very fine singers in the class, but Miss Annie Nancy is the best alto singer, we ever heard.

It was eleven o'clock, and a wicked smile was on the old man's face, as he slipped out of the back door to unchain the watch dog. John Henry, unsuspecting of danger, still lingered by the front porch, pouring forth his love in deep impassioned tones, when

"There came a growl, Oh! horrid sound! That lover, O where was he? Ask of the pants' rests scattered round, But don't ask J. H. E."

LAFAYETTE ITEMS.

Oct. 8th, 1885.
The quietude of our little town was considerably disturbed last Monday by the sad death of Mr. Jas. H. Moss. On last Friday Mrs. Moss left home to visit her sister, Mrs. Jones, who lives in the neighborhood of the Roaring Springs. That evening Mr. Moss bought a bottle of morphine of Wootton & Son and got Dr. Wootton to dose out four doses for him. He was at his regular place of business with Shyer Bros., on Saturday, went home that night after closing the store, and was not seen anymore until about 12 o'clock Monday, when Rev. E. E. Pate, with whom he had been taking his meals, becoming uneasy at his long absence, began to make inquiry and found that no one had seen him since Saturday night, and becoming more uneasy, Bro. Pate, with several other gentlemen, went to his house, forced an entrance through a window and found him lying in the bed in an unconscious condition. The doctor was immediately summoned and everything was done that could be for his relief, but to no avail. He died about 5 o'clock on Monday, and about 5 o'clock on Monday, his soul took its flight to that better world. The bottle of morphine was found under his pillow; about one third of its contents had been taken out. The supposition is that he took the morphine in order to make him sleep, as he had been quite restless and had not slept well for some time. Mr. Moss was a man who was honored and respected by all who knew him for his high moral character and strict integrity. He was upright and honest in all his dealings, forgiving in disposition, quite and unassuming in his manners and the best of neighbors. And in him we have lost one of our best and most highly respected citizens. To his much bereaved widow and friends we tender our heartfelt sympathy and condolence.

Mr. T. J. Fuqua has moved to town and taken charge of the Hotel Mand, formerly occupied by Mr. A. A. Fuqua, where he will be glad to entertain the traveling public.

A. J. & W. W. Fuqua have bought the interest of A. A. Fuqua, and the firm of A. J. Fuqua & Co., and W. W. Fuqua has gone East to purchase a fresh supply of fall and winter goods. We expect Bill will have a nice and well selected stock this fall, as he is a young man of excellent taste and judgement, especially as far as White goods is concerned.

Mr. A. F. Joiner, formerly of the firm of A. F. Joiner & Co., has accepted a position with Shyer Bros., where he will be glad to see his old customers and friends.

Mr. R. E. Cooper has just returned from Louisville with a splendid selection of fall and winter goods. The farmers of this neighborhood have been quite uneasy for the past few days about frost, as not more than half of the tobacco crop has been cut yet.

In reply to the slanderous scribble, which appeared in the issue of the KENTUCKIAN of Sept. 22nd, over the name of W. B. Pace, we would say, that although we may be a "one-horse" magistrate and the proprietor of a very small stock of groceries, we don't state anything but facts, and those which we are able to prove and furthermore we don't make contracts which we are not able to fill, nor hire men and not pay for their work. Mr. Pace said we were unable to find any fault with the manner in which he has discharged his duties. The reason why we did not was simply because Mr. Hurt, who was carrier at that time, had been bringing the mails more regularly than his predecessors. We do say the mail has failed to reach this post-office a good many days in the past twelve months. And we expect, unless the mails come more regularly in the future than they have in the past, a complaint will come from "a source worthy of notice."

URBAN.

The Betrayer of Gen. John H. Morgan.

A Greenville (Tenn.) correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution thus relates the facts of the woman who betrayed Gen. John H. Morgan to his death:

"The death of Gen. John Morgan was compassed here during the war by the treachery and demonic daring of a wild, reckless woman. She was the graceless daughter-in-law of Mrs. Col. Williams, who was the cheerful hostess of the great cavalryman on that ill-starred night. Lucy Williams rode her horse through the stormy darkness and summoned the Federals from Bull's Gap to surprise Morgan and capture or kill him. The history of the deed is too familiar to need repetition. The woman and cold blooded heroine of the exploit was afterward divorced from her worthy husband and fled the country with a married man of Greenville by the name of Fitzgerald. They went to Arkansas and lived, I believe, as coparceners in adultery at Helena. Some time ago she abandoned Fitzgerald and married a man of means, who was then a widower of three months standing. In a few months after the marriage with the ex-Mrs. Williams the new husband also died, and she disappeared with the lure of which he was possessed. Fitzgerald, thrown overboard, and being afflicted with a fatal malaria, wrote to his long-abandoned wife and family, confessing all his misdeeds and begging to be allowed to return home to die among his children. The request was granted him, but did not profit him in his misery, for he died before he could reach home, and without seeing the faces of his wronged wife and child."

CAPTURE OF JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The Ex-President of the late Confederacy Refutes Some False Statements Made by an Indiana Soldier.

[New York Herald.]

BEAUVILLE, Miss., Sept. 9, 1885.

To the Editor of the Herald: On my return after a protracted absence from home I received a slip from your Journal, which I enclose for greater convenience in noticing its contents:

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 16, 1885.

At the recent re-union of the veterans of the Fourth Indiana cavalry, in this city, Lieut. Isgrig, of the command, who was Provost Marshal at Macon, Ga., at the time of the capture of Jefferson Davis, related the circumstances of the capture. He described his participation in this affair as follows: "I went out to the line of my jurisdiction to receive Davis. Two miles and a half from Macon he became my prisoner, and I brought him to the city in an old farm wagon. It was a vehicle with a great deal to commend it in its way of construction. I had weakness all over it, but sufficient strength to hold Jefferson Davis, myself and his Secretary. The rebel chief sat between us, and over his head, from a pole fixed to the seat, hung the hoop-skirt, calico wrapper and an old straw hood, which formed his disguise when captured."

So Jeff Davis was disguised? "Yes it is no use to question the fact. The articles of his costume hung from that pole. Davis bore himself with the fortitude of a brave man in trouble. He was courteous to me and to the guard; talked freely on every question but that relating to the result of the war."

"When we stopped at the International Hotel, and were about to get out of the wagon, Capt. Thompson, of the Fourth Indiana cavalry, drew his revolver to fire at Davis. I saw the movement, struck the weapon with my arm, and the bullet tore my coat and skirt. At the moment, Davis, seeing Thompson's purpose, cried out, 'For God's sake, Lieutenant, save my life!' I got the prisoner out of the wagon and into the hotel with a good deal of alacrity."

"After that I met Davis at the Louisville Hotel in 1872, when he recognized me, and approaching, said: 'I must thank you again, Lieut. Isgrig, for saving my life.' We had quite a chat about the war then. Before this I had received a letter of thanks from him. He was my prisoner eight days, together with wife, daughter and the commissary of his command. These three we took into Macon in an old family carriage. Jeff was not sulky as a prisoner, but one could see that the breaking of the Confederacy bore grievously on his thoughts."

Though accustomed to see slanderous publications in regard to myself, I have read this with no little surprise, because of the total absence of any foundation or pretext on which to build the fiction. I avail myself of your usual courtesy in asking you to publish this serious refutation of the several statements of the story.

It is not true, as stated, that I was turned over to the custody of one Lieut. Isgrig two and a half miles (or any other distance) from Macon. The troops by whom I was captured remained my guard to Macon, and my detachment of men accompanied me to Fortress Monroe in charge of their own officers.

Equally untrue is it that I rode with the said Isgrig and my secretary (or with anyone else) in "an old farm wagon." My private secretary Burton N. Harrison, now a member of the bar of New York, was captured with me, and rode on horseback to Macon. I had several days occupied an ambulance with my wife and children, and rode into Macon in it. There was no such cowardly attempt to offer insult to me as would have been shown by hanging over my head the articles of clothing which Isgrig falsely avers I had worn at the time of my capture. Nor did my captors obtain at the time of my capture my coat-skirts, etc., which Isgrig, declares, unless they were found among the apparel taken from the trunks of my wife and her female servants were pillaged.

On our arrival at the hotel in Macon a small body of troops in front of the entrance were at open ranks facing inward. When I got out of the ambulance to enter the hotel they presented arms, and I passed through, and I received the salute as an expression of the courtesy brave men show to a fallen foe.

The story of "Capt. Thompson, of the fourth Indiana cavalry," attempting to shoot me as I entered the Macon hotel, is wholly fictitious, and I leave it to the regiment itself to repel the imputation that one of its officers would have been guilty of so dastardly an act against a prisoner.

Upon that falsehood the narrator hangs another, that I met him at the Louisville Hotel, in 1872, recognized him and renewed thanks to him "for saving my life," and that I had previously written a letter of thanks to him. I have not been in the Louisville Hotel since the war; I do not remember ever to have seen or heard of this Lieut. Isgrig at any time or place, and it is not true that, as he alleges, I was eight days in his custody, or that I have ever written to him a letter of thanks. I remained in Macon but a few hours, and was sent forward to Fortress Monroe the evening of the day of my arrival.

Yours respectfully,

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

"It Will Cure Asthma."

"I had suffered with asthma for over forty years, and had a terrible attack in December and January, 1882. One day I took four doses of Parker's Tonic. The effect astonished me. I slept perfectly that night, and am now wholly well. Parker's Tonic will cure chronic asthma." E. C. Williams, Chapman, Pa.

Where Kissing is Unknown.

As a sign of affection, kissing was unknown to the Australians, the New Zealanders, the Papuans, the Esquimaux and other races. The Polynesians and the Malays always sit down when speaking to a superior. The inhabitants of Mallicolo, an island in the Pacific Ocean, show their admiration by hissing; the Esquimaux pull a person's nose as a compliment; a Chinaman puts on his hat where he should take it off, and among the same curious people a coffin is considered a neat and appropriate present for an aged person, especially if in bad health.

Have tried Tongaline in two very severe attacks of neuralgia, but did not profit from it in his misery, for he died before he could reach home, and without seeing the faces of his wronged wife and child.

JUDGE W. L. DULANEY.

A Good One Told on the Judge During His Late Tour Through the Purchase

[Princeton Argus.]

Judge Dulaney is a candidate for the Appellate Judgeship, and made a tour of visits through this section of the country looking after his fences. He went to Ballard county, and it seems, made himself famous in that neck of the woods. The Judge, when a young man, learned to perform on a violin to that extent that would arouse the envy of a thoroughbred Italian. As he grows older his expertise with the bow and finger-board grows less but has not entirely departed from him as the following incident shows. While in Ballard county, the young folks in that county had a brand-dance and it happened that the Judge was there. All the preliminaries being arranged, the crowd was "put out" upon discovering the absence of their fiddler. This important person did not put in his appearance, and as a brand-dance is a thoroughbred pleasure, the whole thing was about to fall through, when the Judge, who had heretofore been silent and had occupied the position as honored guest of the evening, proposed to play the fiddle. His offer was joyfully accepted, and the Judge donned the rural air, and played magnificently to the gratification of the merry dancers.

From the Dissecting Room.

I have taken Swift's Specific for blood poison contracted at a medical college at a dissection, while I was a medical student. I am grateful to say that it gave me a speedy and thorough cure after my parents had spent hundreds of dollars for treatment. My arm was swollen to twice its usual size, and as nothing helped me I was despairing of ever being cured. But hearing of the S. S. S. I bought a bottle little thinking I would derive any benefit from it. I began taking it regularly, soon the swelling began to go down, and I continued its use, and after taking eight bottles was thoroughly cured.

AUGUSTUS WENZEL, M.D., Newark, N. J. Jan. 3, 1885.

A Physician's Testimony.

I have tried Swift's Specific in a very bad case of blood poison, and take great pleasure in stating that it was a perfect success, producing a complete cure. I have tried it also in many other cases with good results. I think it the best blood purifier of the age.

A "Women's Exchange."

The sign was displayed, and somebody tried to see if a man who traded his wife for another one. Found it was impracticable. The best kind of exchange for women is that which is promoted by Brown's Iron Bitters. Exchange poor health for good. Broken down and debilitated ladies with impoverished blood find vigor and joy in the enrichment which this price of tonics bestows on them.

The Electoral Commission was composed of Judges Clifford, Strong, Miller, Field, Bradley, of Senators Edmunds, Morton, Frelinghuysen, Thurman, Bayard of Representatives Payne, Hutton, Abbott, Garfield, Hoar. (Democrats are in italics) Justice Bradley cast the deciding vote that evidence to show elections that were not qualified was alluded, and this made the nickname of "Allunde Joe." The Democratic members voted uniformly that the commission had a right to go behind the returns, while the Republicans voted one day that they could and the next day that they could not, according as which course would give them an elector, so that the vote stood fifteen to ten or to seven. It was not until a year after Hayes had been seated that it was discovered the return from Louisiana had been forged, that there was no valid Republican return from that State, and that the Republican members of the commission had hoodwinked the Democratic members by keeping the forged certificate (passed 8 to 7) in their own hands. When produced before the Potter Committee it was found that the signatures were in one hand writing, and the Republican electors swore that they did not sign it. The total salaries of the electors conferred by Hayes upon the Returning Board thives amounted to $369,080.—Interior Journal.

The Origin of "Mr." and "Mrs."

[N. O. Times Democrat.]

The history of those everyday titles of Mr. and Mrs., which are now the common property of every one, is not without interest, though in some of its steps it is a little obscure. In the earlier times of our history the ordinary man was simply William or John; that is to say, he had merely a Christian name without any kind of "handle" before it, or surname after it. Some means of distinguishing one John or one William from another became necessary. Nicknames, derived from man's trade, or from his dwelling place, or from some personal peculiarity, were tacked on their Christian names, and plain John became plain John Smith. As yet there were no "Misters" in the land. Some John Smith accumulated more wealth than the bulk of his fellows, became, perhaps a landed proprietor, or an employer of hired labor. Then he began to be called "Mister" by the French of the day, the "Maistre" of this place, or of that, or of these workmen or of those. In time the "Maistre" or "Maister," as it soon became, got tacked on before his name, and he became Maister Smith, and his wife was Maistress Smith. But gradually the sense of possession was lost sight of, and the title was conferred upon any man who had accumulated a considerable amount of wealth, or by holding some position of more or less consideration and importance. It is only within comparatively modern times that the term became to be considered an almost indispensable adjunct to every one's name when mentioned in ordinary conversation.

Maistress Smith's son became Maister Smith. Exactly how and when the term got corrupted cannot be said. Maister Smith, however, remained Maister Smith long after his wife became Maistress Smith.
